Frequencies: A Novel by Sophie Ganic

In the aftermath of a global outbreak that has turned human contact into a certain death sentence, the last woman on Earth battles isolation and psychological breakdown with the help of a man whose voice crackles through her CB transceiver. Confined to a remote mountain cabin, Hannah subsists on canned food and her nightly transmissions with Joe. Their calls help Hannah keep a grip on reality but her reliance on him comes at an unexpected price that fractures her tenuous sense of safety. A searing and claustrophobic twist on domestic noir and feminist post-apocalyptic horror.

Apocalyptic & Post-Apocalyptic

Sophie Ganic writes cyberpunk and dystopian stories that weave together the speculative and the profoundly human. Drawing upon her PhD in molecular biology and her experience in cancer research, she explores the what-ifs of technological evolution. Frequencies is the first novel by this Vancouver-based author.

Shivers Christmas Ghost Stories to Read Aloud by JJ Lee

Ghost stories have been associated with Christmas since Charles Dickens first published A Christmas Carol. Generations of Canadians grew up listening to "Fireside AI" read beloved stories on CBC radio every Christmas Eve. With a story for each of the twelve days of Christmas, author and broadcaster JJ Lee breathes new life into both traditions. Originally written for radio, each story in this jewel-like collection can be read aloud in about eight minutes. Audiences of all ages will enjoy this opportunity to reconnect as they turn their attention to spectral trains, incorporeal canines, eerie playmates, and shadows of the past.

Stories

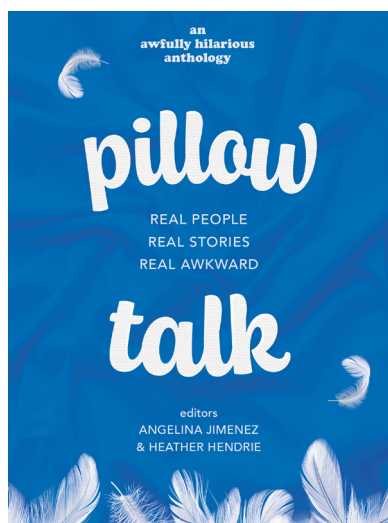

by Patrick Woodcock

Acclaimed poet Patrick Woodcock grants breath and memory to objects he has encountered during more than thirty years as a migrant writer. In tales that move between laughter and rage, tenderness and defiance, he allows them to speak of what he has seen and felt in geographies and histories that range from Iqaluit, Nunavut, to Poland, Bosnia and Herzegovina, the Kurdish North of Iraq and beyond. Whether a boat, a baby carriage, a strip of bark, or a stone, each narrator bears witness to the quiet beauty and enduring sorrow that mark the human world. Beneath them all runs a single current—a profound love of life.

A Ghost in the Room

Supernatural Adventures in Historic Houses

by Ann McDougall

“Is this place haunted?” Staff at historic house museums are asked about ghosts on a daily basis, and these small museums strive to satisfy the public’s appetite for the occult with ghost walks, paranormal investigations, seance recreations and other supernatural programs. But what is it about historic spaces that sparks our interest in connecting with the other side? Author Ann McDougall explores their tales of the supernatural and investigates our enduring desire to communicate with the dead.

Hockey wasn't meant to include girls. Women attracted to the speed, finesse and physicality of the game had to overcome condescending attitudes, lack of resources, legal barriers and even sexual assault in their quest for legitimacy and ice time. For more than 150 years, their gender was questioned, monitored, hidden, disparaged and trivialized. Even so, teams were formed and stars emerged.
